Beautiful fragrances scenting your world.

Incenses from India ("agarbatties") represent literally thousands of different ingredients and compounds. They usually contain liquid perfumes as well as solid base ingredients such as sandalwood powder, charcoal and a resin known as "jigit."

Any such incense can be expected to have 50 or more ingredients. As a result, the variety of incense from India is quite vast.

MASALA is the Indian word for a blend of spices and/or herbs, such as those used in making curries or other food dishes. Masala incenses are made by blending a number of solid ingredients into a paste which is then rolled onto a bamboo core stick. Masalas usually do not contain liquid perfumes which can evaporate.

Bring exotic fragrance into your home with Kamini products.
